Rohit Bassi uses a lapel or headset microphone and brings his own 'clicker' and the AV provider's clicker is a backup for him.

It's vital you inform the AV people that he runs an Apple Mac laptop from the lectern out front – he AVOIDS placing his presentation on the 'main' computer up at the back – because there have been times where the organiser have requested last minute changes that need to be emphasised to the audience.

He needs a regular 3.5mm sound lead, and either a VGA or HDMI cable.
